TRAVEL TIPS

 Nepal's official currency is the Nepalese Rupee (NPR). Indian Rupee notes of ?100 are widely accepted, while acceptance of higher denomination notes may vary, so carry sufficient local currency or exchange money at authorized counters.The best time to visit Nepal is March to May and September to November, when the weather is pleasant and the Himalayan views are at their best.Temperatures can vary significantly between mornings, evenings, and daytime. Carry warm clothing, especially when visiting Nagarkot, Sarangkot, or higher-altitude areas.Wear comfortable walking shoes, as many temples, heritage sites, and viewpoints involve walking and climbing steps. Dress modestly while visiting temples and religious sites. Remove shoes before entering temples and follow local customs.Stay hydrated throughout the journey and carry a reusable water bottle. Drink bottled or purified water whenever possible.Photography may be restricted inside certain temples and monasteries. Always check local guidelines before taking photographs.Respect local traditions, wildlife, and the natural environment. Avoid littering and help preserve Nepal's beautiful landscapes.Adventure activities such as paragliding, zip-lining, ultra-light flights, bungee jumping, and boating are optional and subject to weather conditions and operational availability.Travel times in Nepal may vary due to mountain roads, weather, and traffic. Plan your schedule with some flexibility.
